The bus used for transport transforms into a classroom once it has dropped children to their respective schools. The bus becomes a School-on-Wheels. It is a bus that is furnished and equipped to be used as a classroom. It can accommodate around 25 students at a time. The School-on-Wheels project is the flagship of Door Step's attempts to take education to out of school children who dwell on the very fringes of society. "School-on-Wheels is a means to impart basic literacy skills to the less settled groups of children, viz. those who live on pavements, station platforms or street corners and are often seen begging. These groups are very mobile and usually there is no facility to run classes in the areas where they dwell. A bus provides the most suitable alternative for such a classroom".

The Door Step School considers education as a solution to many social problems."Education always opens doors for a brighter future. People who are even a bit literate have better opportunities in life. If one person is educated, he inspires several around him. According to me, illiteracy is non-recurring. Also, problems like population, poverty, crime can be considerably solved with education. Furthermost, if we educate our children, adult illiteracy will no longer exist," beams Rajani.

Q. 1-A) Read the following passage and answer the questions given below: (11)

But the dog refused. Mayank reached out under the car to try to touch it. It shrank away and moved further back. Mayank felt hurt and disappointed. He wondered what to do. Then he had a brain wave. "It's probably hungry. It needs food. F-O-O-D. Why didn't I think of that before?" he wondered.

In he went, running to his mother. "Mummy, Mummy, may I please have a slice of bread? There's a beautiful puppy outside and he's very hungry." Mayank's mother paused for a moment before replying: "There you go again, chasing pups and kittens. Why don't you let them alone? Once you start feeding them, they'll come every day. I don't want a nuisance in my house." Mayank used all his pervasive skills to plead with his mother. "Please, Mummy, just want him to have a little bit of bread before he is driven away."

Still muttering her disapproval, his mother gave him a slice. Then on a generous impulse, she also gave him a couple of glucose biscuits. "Here, try these on him. But don't be too long, okay? Your father will be coming back any minute." Mayank's mother was loving, yet strict enough not to let her son get spoiled. Though she instinctively disapproved, of Mayank's latest adventure with the stray pup, she let him go ahead. "Perhaps he'll learn something," she thought to herself. "Certainly, it's not wrong to love animals and plants. It makes children sensitive."

So Mayank got his way. Armed with the tempting snacks, he made a renewed bid on the pup. He called it many names, even "Tiger", he threw little crumbs of the biscuits and bread in front of it. The puppy went round and round the car, always moving as far away from the child as possible. It ignored the food.

HIGH above the city, on a tall column, stood the statue of the Happy Prince. He was gilded all over with thin leaves of fine gold, for eyes he had two bright sapphires, and a large red ruby glowed on his sword-hilt.

He was very much admired indeed. 'He is as beautiful as a weathercock,' remarked one of the Town Councillors who wished to gain a reputation for having artistic taste; 'only not quite so useful,' he added, fearing lest people should think him unpractical, which he really was not.

'Why can't you be like the Happy Prince?' asked a sensible mother of her little boy who was crying for the moon. 'The Happy Prince never dreams of crying for anything.'

'I am glad there is someone in the world who is quite happy', muttered a disappointed man as he gazed at the wonderful statue.

'He looks just like an angel,' said the Charity Children as they came out of the cathedral in their bright scarlet cloaks, and their clean white pinafores.

'How do you know?' said the Mathematical Master, 'you have never seen one.'

'Ah! but we have, in our dreams,' answered the children; and the Mathematical Master frowned and looked very severe, for he did not approve of children dreaming.

Imagine you are a person living in the city which had the statue of the Happy Prince. Describe the Happy Prince and narrate how the different people in the city admired the statue of the Happy Prince.

II UNIT TEST - JANUARY 2016

Max. Marks: 25

Class: F.Y.J.C. COM/SCI

Subject: English

Time: 1.15 hours

Q. 1-A) Read the following extract and answer the questions given below : (11)

The shadows lengthened. Dusk fell. Mayank had been trying to make friends with the pup for nearly two hours. He felt tired and dispirited. The dog had rejected all his advances. And he had tried so hard. What was baffling was that a stray dog was spurning food, love, and shelter. What was its future going to be? It would roam around like other stray dogs - fed occasionally but most often kicked and insulted. What a life!

Finally, Mayank gave up. Quietly he went inside. Going to his room, he gently shut the door behind him. He took out his homework but found that he couldn't study. His mother noticed him going in but didn't stop him. She had guessed that his adventure with the puppy hadn't quiet taken off, though she didn't know exactly what had gone wrong. She thought it best not to broach the topic just yet. Children don't like to be reminded of their failures, she knew.

No matter how hard he tried to forget the pup, Mayank's mind kept wandering back to it. Why had it behaved that way? Why did it refused to eat? Why was it always trying to run away from him? He felt upset and confused. Somehow he managed to go through his homework but his mind was uneasy. He was on the verge of tears.

Just then his mother opened the door. It was time for dinner. His father had already come back. He had changed, had his cup of tea and the usual chat with Mummy. Now both of them were waiting for him. Mayank quickly controlled himself.

His mother gave him a kiss and both of them went to the drawing room silently. Mayank's father was in his early forties, a fairly successful executive in a large company. He was a great reader of books and had a warm, sensitive face. He instantly welcomed Mayank and stroked his hair affectionately. "What's the matter? Why are you looking so glum?" he asked.
